Torwin is back for the 2011 Toronto National Home Show and better than ever. Fully equipped with brand new premium quality products, their new line-up of products features fiberglass door systems that can fool even the most detailed eye into thinking they are real wood.

These doors are an alternative to wood doors and offer increased longevity, durability and affordability. “We are extremely excited to be entering in the fiberglass door market. We have a sound go-to market strategy and a premium quality product that offers our customers an affordable, yet stylish, option to add curb appeal and resale value to their homes” states Jody Crevier, an Owner at Torwin Windows & Doors.

Not only is Torwin debuting their new line of Fiberglass doors, they are also debuting a host of other new products, including new decorative glass collections and an entirely new product line of prefinished wood siding. In addition, their new line of garage door offer elevated design to add a truly unique finish to the exterior of any home. The customization of each of these new products allows customers to really play with colour, glass design and panel configuration to create a finished product that reflects their personal style and taste.
